

4 Popular Types of Awnings in Salt Lake City

Patio and Pergola Awnings

Patio and pergola awnings are some of the most popular canopy types in Utah, specifically in the Salt Lake City area. Patio awnings do exactly as their name suggests—they provide shade and shelter for a patio area. They are generally fixed to one wall and extend outwards over a patio area. Pergola canopies are complemented with extra support posts. Both are available in all types of patterns and shades, but stripes are the most commonly used pattern for Salt Lake City businesses. Certain providers offer custom retractable patio canopies, meaning that they can be easily retracted and pulled out as the need arises. Patio awnings are ideal for businesses in Utah because of the protection they offer from the blazing summer sun as well as the bitter fall rain.

Conservatory Awnings

Conservatory canopies are unique in the sense that they are generally mounted to existing roof structures. Conservatory awnings are ideal for especially hot climates, as their special design has the potential to block sun rays before they even reach the glass of the conservatory. As such, they contribute to temperature control. Conservatory awnings can be operated with a remote control, to allow sun rays to penetrate the glass on cooler days and to prevent them from entering on warmer days. This feature makes conservatory canopies especially appealing to Salt Lake City homes and businesses, as Utah weather can be unpredictable and extreme.

Vertical Awnings

Vertical canopies are essentially fancy window blinds. The perfect combination of weatherproof and retractable, vertical canopies are ideal for providing privacy and shading to a patio area. As the name suggests, vertical awnings are installed vertically to a wall and extended outwards horizontally. Depending on the provider, they may be custom-fitted, retractable, or even remote-controlled. Vertical canopies are a great way to keep extreme hot or cold temperatures at bay in your Salt Lake City dining area.
